

Moran Selects Clay Curtin and Steve Howe for Washington, D.C. Internships

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Congressman Jerry Moran today announced that Clay Curtin of Atwood and Steve Howe of Manhattan are Congressional interns in his Washington, D.C. office.

"The internship program is a good opportunity for young people, like Clay and Steve, to get a better understanding of the federal government," Moran said. "These two have an excellent record of academics and activities, and I am happy to have them working on behalf of Kansans."

A native of Atwood, Curtin graduated from Atwood High School in 2000. He is now a senior at Washburn University in Topeka. He is expected to graduate in December 2003 with degrees in Political Science and Criminal Justice. At Washburn, Curtin has been on both the President's and Dean's Honor Roll. Following graduation, Curtin plans to seek a Masters Degree in Public Administration and a career in public service.

A native of Manhattan, Howe graduated from Kansas State University in December 2002 with a degree in Speech and Communication. While at KSU, he was a member of the Delta Chi Fraternity and of the student sports staff at KSDB FM Radio. Howe hopes to work on Capitol Hill for a Kansan Congressman or Senator and continue in public service.

While in Washington, D.C., the two will assist Congressman Moran and his staff with legislative and administrative duties on behalf of the people of Kansas' First Congressional District.

Clay is the son of Lynn and Jan Curtin of Atwood, Steve is the son of Jon and Roxana Howe of Manhattan.
